

I would like to say that there was a lack of education for most constituents in our district. Everything that happened with redistricting should have been expressed to the constituents. The change of polling locations was not something that was even discussed with our office, campaign office or the constituents. Leaving us on the government side slow to respond to constituents. because we did not have the knowledge of what was happening. Mostly because they wanted an explanation as to why they were never notified, which we can not fault them because neither were we. Lastly, there was more of an effort to educate the public for rank choice than redistricting.
